“ This literally hits home as Eddie was my actual neighbor next door. We were a year apart, young teenagers at THS. We never said much than "hey"- chalk it up to shyness. I remember Eddie constantly working head deep on his car or somebody's! Through the wooden slats of our fence barrier, I recall times he was irate just as I remember him laughing his ass off. AND HENRY- can't forget you and my brothers peeking through those slats to play!

It wasn't until 2014 or so when we returned to help our mom sell our childhood home. It was special to talk to his father Al as adults. He had great stories about living next door to my crazy dad and I loved it. He forward my # to Eddie to inquire about our home. He called me and in 1 hr we spoke more than ever. I loved how passionate he was about his catering which ironically was my field.

In seconds we were just 2 adults that grew up next door as just kiddos.

RIP Eddie and your family is in my thoughts. I'm returning to Turlock in Sept and obviously going to make a neighborhood run. Sorry to miss you but gonna say hi to your dad.
