“ My earliest memories of my Tio Frank was at a birthday party where he was showing us kids various magic tricks and telling stories. Since then, I always saw my Tio as someone so interesting and full of life stories. I always wanted to match his outgoing personality so that I too could try and live the stories he told. Although we were split by distance, I always looked forward to visiting him when I went up north or seeing him when he came down to visit us. I know my Tio Frank is now at rest, reunited with all our family that has gone before us. And I know I will see him again, in time, to be reunited with more stories of his made in heaven.

“ For much of my life (and even now, if I'm honest), I saw Tio Frank as a magical man. No one has a presence quite like his. He was always so full of life and joy, even after the hours-long travel to LA, and you couldn't help but be happy around him. I loved hearing the chronicles of the Midnight Rider and I will always cherish the memories I have of him- from watching him try to capture a pigeon in my grandma's backyard to no avail to practicing French with him or to hearing one of his many jokes that would have my grandma jokingly scolding him. While he is now resting, his memory and spirit will never die and I cannot wait to hear another one of his jokes when we are all reunited again. ❤️

“ Tio Frank thank you for being such an amazing Tio.

You have been in my life since day one, driving my mom to the hospital and giving me a second middle name. Living next door to you for so many years, gave us so many fun times and left us with incredible memories. My kids remind me of your humor and stories and say that you lived and loved life. We must learn to have the strength and humor you had. Tio you will never be forgotten, we love you💔
