The Art of Hip Hop: Intellect of Influence
An excerpt from Marodin's rhymes

I'm sorry that I never became / the rawest emcee to bless
the microphone like a priest /
I'm sorry for never to be seen
among the dwellers of the underground scenes /
I'm sorry cause
I never achieved the remedy to transform
the ailments of greed/
I'm sorry for missing your march
and the speech about your dream/

I speak in a voice that seeps to nourish
till you flourish with seeds/
I will raise you to pave the road to haven
and to name it omid/
begin a legacy in name of one whose adoration of your heart will never cease/blessed is he who writes in the language of love scented with the fragrance of patience and grace in face of hatred/
